Design Culture Now is the first survey of contemporary American design to span the disciplines of architecture, graphic design, and product design. It presents cutting-edge work in architecture, landscape architecture, urban design, industrial design, fashion, typography, film, graphics, products, and new media. Written and assembled by three leading critics and curators, Donald Albrecht, Ellen Lupton, and Steven Skov Holt, the book explores the design artifacts and practices that will define the twenty-first century.

Design Culture Now features work by individuals and small studios as well as by large firms and corporations. Focusing on emerging designers, it also highlights established figures influencing future generations. Over eighty individuals and firms are represented, including graphic designers Bruce Mau and Station Sagmeister; Nulty; Nike’s Tinker Hatfield; style guru Martha Stewart; architects Noll M. Donari and Greg Lynn; film set designer Dante Ferretti; and fashion designers Kate Spade and Geoffrey Benezet.

Design Culture Now accompanies the National Design Triennial: Design Culture Now, the first in a series of exhibitions exploring the impulses, issues, and ideas driving design today, organized by Cooper-Hewitt, National Design Museum, Smithsonian Institution. The only exhibition of its kind in the United States, the Triennial will present a critical overview of leading developments in American architecture and design every three years.

Cover Design: Kariem Rashid

ISBN: 0-300-098218-0 $29.95
Design Culture Now is the first survey of contemporary American design to span the disciplines of architecture, graphic design, and product design. It presents cutting-edge work in architecture, landscape architecture, product design, theoretical design, fashion, typography, film, graphics, product design, and new media. Written and assembled by three leading critics and curators, Donald Albrecht, Ellen Lupton, and Steven Skov Holt, the book explores the design artifacts and practices that will define the twenty-first century.

Design Culture Now features work by individuals and small studios as well as by large firms and corporations. Focusing on emerging designers, it also highlights established figures influencing future design trends. Over eighty individuals and firms are represented, including graphic designers Brian Dieter and Sharon Sagner; architect Kevin Turner; and fashion designers Anthony Tepedino and Greg Lynn. Film set designer Denis Leke and fashion designer Kim Spade are also featured.

Design Culture Now accompanies the National Design Triennial: Design Culture Now, the first in a series of exhibitions exploring the impulse, issues, and ideas driving design today, organized by Cooper Hewitt, National Design Museum, Smithsonian Institution, the only exhibition of its kind in the United States. The Triennial will present a critical overview of leading developments in American architecture and design every three years.
Design Culture Now is the first survey of contemporary American design to span the disciplines of architecture, graphic design, and product design. It presents cutting-edge work in architecture, landscape architecture, urban design, theatrical design, fashion, typography, film, graphics, products, and new media. Written and assembled by these leading critics and curators, Donald Albrecht, Ellen Lupton, and Steven Shok Holt, the book explores the design institutes and practices that will define the twenty-first century.

Design Culture Now features work by individuals and small studios as well as by large firms and corporations. Focusing on emerging designers, it also highlights established figures influencing future generations. Over eighty individuals and firms are represented, including graphic designers Bruce Mau and Stefan Sagmeister; Nike's Tinker Hatfield; stylists Martha Stewart, Architectural Digest, and Vogue; film directors Martin Scorsese and David Cronenberg; and fashion designers Kate Spade and Geoffrey Beene.

Design Culture Now accompanies the National Design Triennial: Design Culture Now, the first in a series of exhibitions exploring the impulses, issues, and ideas driving design today, organized by Cooper Hewitt, National Design Museum, Smithsonian Institution. The only exhibition of its kind in the United States, the Triennial will present a critical overview of leading developments in American architecture and design every three years.
Design Culture Now is the first survey of contemporary American design to span the disciplines of architecture, graphic design, and product design. It presents cutting-edge work in architecture, landscape architecture, urban design, industrial design, fashion, typography, film, graphics, products, and new media. Written and assembled by three leading critics and curators, Donald Albrecht, Ellen Lupton, and Steven Skov Holt, the book explores the design artifacts and practices that will define the twenty-first century.

Design Culture Now features work by individuals and small studios as well as by large firms and corporations. Focusing on emerging designers, it also highlights established figures influencing future generations. Over eighty individuals and firms are represented, including graphic designers Bruce Mau and Stefan Sagmeister; Nike's Tinker Hatfield; style guru Martha Stewart; architects Neil M. Denari and Greg Lynn; film set designer Dante Ferretti; and fashion designers Kate Spade and Geoffrey Bono.

Design Culture Now accompanies the National Design Triennial. Design Culture Now, the first in a series of exhibitions exploring the impulses, issues, and ideas driving design today, organized by Cooper Hewitt, National Design Museum, Smithsonian Institution. The only exhibition of its kind in the United States, the Triennial will present a critical overview of leading developments in American architecture and design every three years.

ISBN 1-56898-218-0 $29.95
Cover Design: Kenra Rashid
Design Culture Now is the first survey of contemporary American design to span the disciplines of architecture, graphic design, and product design. It presents cutting-edge work in architecture, landscape architecture, urban design, theoretical design, fashion, typography, film, graphics, products, and new media. Written and assembled by three leading critics and curators, Donald Albrecht, Ellen Lupton, and Steven Sorkin, the book explores the design arenas and practices that will define the twenty-first century.

Design Culture Now features work by individuals and small studios as well as by large firms and corporations. Focusing on emerging designers, it also highlights established figures influencing future generations. Over eighty individuals and firms are represented, including graphic designers Bruce Mau and Stefan Sagmeister; Nicolas Halsfield; fashion designers Christian Dior; and film director Steven Soderbergh.

Design Culture Now accompanies the National Design Triennial: Design Culture Now, the first in a series of exhibitions exploring the issues, issues, and ideas driving design today, organized by Cooper Hewitt, National Design Museum, Smithsonian Institution. The only exhibition of its kind in the United States, the Triennial will present a critical overview of leading developments in American architecture and design every three years.
Design Culture Now is the first survey of contemporary American design to open the disciplines of architecture, graphic design, and product design. It presents cutting-edge work in architecture, landscape architecture, urban design, theatrical design, fashion, typography, film, graphics, products, and new media. Written and assembled by these leading critics and curators, Donald Albrecht, Ellen Lupton, and Steven Skov Holt, the book explores the design of architects and practices that will define the twenty-first century.

Design Culture Now features work by individuals and small studios as well as by large firms and corporations. Featuring emerging designers, it also highlights established figures influencing future generations. Over eighty individuals and firms are represented, including graphic designers Bruce Mau and Stefan Sagmeister; Nike’s Tinker Hatfield; style guru Martha Stewart; architects Holf M. Damiani and Greg Lynn; film set designer Santo Formento; and fashion designer Kate Spade and Geoffrey Borman.

Design Culture Now accompanies the National Design Triennial: Design Culture Now, the first in a series of exhibitions exploring the impulses, issues, and ideas driving design today, organized by Cooper-Hewitt, National Design Museum, Smithsonian Institution. The only exhibition of its kind in the United States, the Triennial will present a critical overview of leading developments in American architecture and design every three years.

Princeton Architectural Press
Cooper-Hewitt National Design Museum
Smithsonian Institution

Cover Design: Karen Raddatz
ISBN 1-56898-219-6 $20.00

National Design Triennial
Donald Albrecht  Ellen Lupton  Steven Skov Holt
design
culture
now
Design Culture Now is the first survey of contemporary American design to span the disciplines of architecture, graphic design, and product design. It presents cutting-edge work in architecture, landscape architecture, urban design, industrial design, fashion, typography, fine graphics, products, and new media. Written and researched by three leading critics and curators, Donald Albrecht, Ellen Lupton, and Steven Kurtz, the book explores the design artifacts and practices that will define the twenty-first century.

Design Culture Now features work by individuals and small studios as well as large firms and corporations. Focusing on emerging designers, it also highlights established figures influencing future generations. Over eighty individuals and firms are represented, including graphic-designers Bruce Mau and Stefan Sagmeister; Nike's Tinker Hatfield; style guru Martha Stewart; architects Neil M. Denari and Greg Lynn; film designer Dante Ferretti; and fashion designer Kate Spade and Geoffrey Bawa.

Design Culture Now accompanies the National Design Triennial: Design Culture Now, the first in a series of exhibitions exploring the impulses, issues, and ideas driving design today, organized by Cooper-Hewitt, National Design Museum, Smithsonian Institution. The only exhibition of its kind in the United States, the Triennial will present a critical overview of leading developments in American architecture and design every three years.